Brazil's print history begins in the late 18th century, a time when the country was still a Portuguese colony. Prior to the late 1700s, print culture was virtually nonexistent, with most knowledge transmitted orally or through imported texts. The first notable milestone was the publication of the "Gazeta do Rio de Janeiro" in 1808, coinciding with the Portuguese royal court's transfer to Brazil. - The development of journalism as a profession
- The promotion of Romanticism and regionalist literature
- The gradual expansion of literacy and reading audiences

Transition to Modern Media: 1890?1930

Technological Advancements and Publishing Expansion

The late 19th and early 20th centuries saw technological innovations such as the steam-powered printing press, which significantly increased production capacity and lowered costs. This revolution facilitated the expansion of print media, including newspapers, magazines, and books.
